

Olympus Guild Guide - Draft R6

Office descriptions, the proposed statute, bylaws and model ordinances. The complete charters and source register remain in the full book.

Unratified draft. No appointments issued and no permissions changed.

This is an excerpt from the preserved 40-page successor draft R6. Original page numbers are retained so a reader can cross-check the complete book. Blank signatures stay blank.

The authoring date is not an adoption or effective date. Proposed rules and historical source snapshots do not prove current software behavior. Technical release evidence and separately authorized appointments remain independent.

Reading and Adopting This Book

Successor draft R6 (distinct revision of R5) prepared 9 October 2026 (America/Chicago), derived from preserved Edition 1 dated 2 October 2026. Status: Draft for ratification. The authoring date is not an adoption or effective date. The proposed native ladder is Guild Master, High Council, Officer, Officer Alt, Raid Leader, Veteran, Raider, Member, Alt and Initiate. Treasurer and Co-Guild Master remain appointments. Other jobs remain duties, appointments, relationships or review statuses unless included in that ten-rank ladder.

This book contains the Guild Charter, ceremonial Royal Charter, Letters Patent, revised organisation chart, office descriptions, Guild Statute, Bylaws, Book of Ordinances, first daily-news issue and reusable forms. Members can find their rights and conduct rules in the Statute. Officers can find decision procedures in the Bylaws and practical workflows in the Ordinances. Appointment candidates should read their role description and complete the relevant warrant.

The constitutional instruments define authority. The Statute defines common obligations. Bylaws define procedure. Ordinances direct implementation. A warrant delegates a particular duty. A news issue reports decisions and cannot make them. Platform terms prevail; ceremonial words create no real-world sovereignty. The supplied chart is reference material, and its named holders are not appointed by publication of this book.

The existing, owner-selected one-gold dues policy, fourteen-day exemption, ninety-day ledger retention, working-day privacy-inbox duty, thirty-day privacy-conversation inactivity retention, disabled Battle.net connector and confirmed forced-rename reapplication remain. The owner's erasure and retention policies and beta-reset choice are summarized for their named purposes in Article S12a, ORD 15 and ORD 18-19, with execution constraints identified separately; the separately published privacy and retention policy must describe every collected purpose and its actual controls. This book does not claim to be a complete site data schedule or proof of software enforcement. New six-month appointment terms, quorum rules, review deadlines, financial thresholds and proposed account-level dues treatment require ratification.

First adoption needs actual Founder assent, a published consultation of at least seven calendar days, at least three named independent reviewers and participating Guild Master assent for their own guilds. It does not invent an already appointed Council. Later decisions follow the ordinary Council process. After adoption, issue accepted warrants, review actual permissions separately, verify access and pilot new duties for six to eight weeks.

The I-X directory remains unappointed. Maxran, Akafoxslayer and Fernmelder are names shown in the supplied chart; this book's ratification and governance warrant records are still required. Existing website appointments are distinct, including the two preserved by the owner's reset choice. Vacant offices remain vacant. No role assignment, reset, bank transfer, bot operation, website publication or external message is performed by this book.

Organisation and Offices

The expanded structure uses four core departments, a shared Systems division and five correspondents per affiliated guild. Solid reporting lines identify accountability; coordination lines identify cooperation rather than command. A job can be combined with another compatible job where workload permits, but a custodian cannot independently audit their own assets and a case participant cannot adjudicate their own dispute. The ten native ranks are stated in Article S3 and remain distinct from the appointment and reporting structure.

Command and constitutional offices

Founder and Patron. Asmon is the Founder named in the reference chart. The ratifying authority confirms that identity and the reserved powers in the Charter. The office confirms affiliation and appointments, ratifies constitutional measures and records reasoned final decisions. It does not establish royalty outside the community or remove platform obligations. A conflict concerning the Founder goes to independent adjudicators.

High Council. Appointment-selected Olympus-wide leadership advises the Founder, coordinates standards, reviews budgets and monitors performance. High Council is also a native character rank; the accepted seat, eligible vote and mandate are not created by that rank label. Each eligible seat has an accepted warrant and one vote regardless of other offices or linked characters. Portfolio ownership is an appointed Council duty. A draft warrant assigns no rank or system access. Approved native-rank presets and actual verified permissions are recorded separately.

Co-Guild Master, Vice Guild Master and Chief of Staff. These are appointments with expressly recorded remits; they are not extra native ranks and are not automatically interchangeable. Any combination of duties must be stated in an accepted warrant. They may coordinate agendas, guild-master liaison, the action register, absence cover and delivery across portfolios without assuming the Founder's reserved powers or command over other Guild Masters. The exact owner-confirmed public display name is richwcampbell., with consent recorded. The existing website Co-Guild Master appointment is distinct from the governance warrant prepared here. This book issues no warrant and supplies no acceptance signature, effective date or further permission. Its draft state does not cancel that existing website appointment.

Secretary and Registrar. This practical duty may be carried by the Chief of Staff or another trusted volunteer. It records instruments, minutes, vacancies and current appointment terms. Its confidential access is limited to maintaining the relevant records. It cannot manufacture approval, issue its own appointment or silently edit a decision after the meeting.

Council of Justice. A separate adjudicative body handles conduct, compliance, disputes and appeals. High Councillors with no other portfolio form its default membership, but individual case designation, recusal and access must be recorded. Case panels exclude conflicted participants; appeal reviewers were not involved in the original determination. Actual moderation is executed by separately authorized staff, not by every person with a Justice title.

The four core portfolios

War Head for PvP. Coordinates shared PvP standards, event readiness and the network of PvP Emissaries. Maxran is the name shown in the submitted chart, pending an actual appointment record. The head supports local Captains, reviews legitimate intelligence and reports needs to the Council. Tactical event authority and local guild command remain separate.

War Head for Raiding. Coordinates shared raid preparation, published activity standards and Raiding Emissaries. Akafoxslayer is the charted name, pending ratification and a warrant. The head develops raid support and training with class specialists. Local Raid Leaders run their named events; the portfolio does not grant automatic invitation, loot, bank or demotion powers.

Federal Treasurer. Coordinates dues accounting, approved budgets, receipt reconciliation and Finance Emissaries. Fernmelder is the charted name and holds the existing website Treasurer appointment retained by the owner's reset choice. The governance warrant remains pending rather than issued by this book; its draft state does not cancel the existing website appointment. The Treasurer protects financial records, reports suitable aggregates and refers unexplained discrepancies for independent review. Withdrawal custody and final audit are separated. The appointment does not merge every guild's resources into one private bank. Treasurer is an appointment within High Council, not a native Treasurer rank. A financial appointment, the character's native rank, the approved bank preset and the actual custody/approval rights must be recorded separately. The audit conflict is resolved before examination.

Minister of Artisanry. Coordinates crafting, professions, supply requests and Artisanry Emissaries. The reference chart leaves the office vacant. The minister works with willing crafters, War and Treasury on needs and approved procurement. They do not own members' materials, force free labour or obtain bank access by title.

Minister of Heraldry. Coordinates events, announcements, identity, recruitment communications and community participation. The reference chart leaves the office vacant. The minister supervises Intake, Events, Media and community support teams according to their warrants, and coordinates the new Heraldry Emissaries. Publicity requires verified facts and appropriate consent.

Portfolio Deputies. Each War head, Treasurer and Minister has a named deputy or explicit cover arrangement. Deputies may be High Councillors or trusted officers. A warrant states the activation condition, decisions delegated, exclusions, financial ceiling and reporting duty. Deputyship is neither a new native rank nor automatic permanent succession. Treasury deputy custody must remain independent of the Bank Auditor.

Independent Bank Auditor. Reports findings to the Council or an unconflicted designated authority rather than being directed by the subject of an audit. Reviews receipts, balances, stock movements and authorization records, records limitations and recommends corrections. The role receives no withdrawal or payment-approval power over the audited assets. If the client cannot enforce appropriate access, use reviewed records or supervised inspection; never share an account.

Shared operational services

Chief of Intake and Recruitment Officer. Also called Gatekeeper or Recruitment Lead. A single coordinated function initially under Heraldry owns the application pipeline, guild-capacity contacts, verification readiness and review dates. It coordinates with Guild Masters and local Recruiters. Refusals require relevant evidence and published standards. The office may flag a case for authorized review but cannot independently create a blacklist, declare guilt or bypass game verification.

Chief Strategist and Head of Research. A scoped War appointment researches builds, encounter planning and cross-guild readiness. It publishes the tested game version and distinguishes measured results from hypotheses. It coordinates Class Heads and training. Research creates advice, not compulsory play, account access or a new department.

Intelligence and Scouting Lead. A scoped War appointment coordinates permitted observations and useful in-game scouting. It reports uncertain information as uncertain, avoids private personal information and never authorizes exploiting, surveillance, doxxing or impersonation. A local scout's observations are reviewed before they influence an operational or disciplinary decision.

Diplomat Ambassador and Diplomatic Envoy. These are aliases for a foreign-affairs appointment reporting through the Chief of Staff. It maintains agreed contacts and negotiates proposed cooperation. Only a written delegation permits binding commitments; the holder cannot declare war, promise resources or speak for every guild outside that scope. A future Diplomacy department requires demonstrated workload and constitutional approval.

Media and Communications Lead. Also called Media Lead or Content Creator when the warrant includes production. Under Heraldry, it prepares approved news, manages authorized channels and coordinates local Stream or Content Representatives. It confirms permission for identifiable clips, voices and quotations. It cannot speak as a platform administrator, publish private case material or promise an unapproved alliance.

Events Coordinator. Under Heraldry, maintains a calendar and works with event owners on sign-ups, timing, accessibility, publicity and cancellation. A cross-guild coordinator complements local organizers. It cannot require every member to attend, change a raid's loot rule or allocate bank funds without the responsible approval.

Training and Academy Lead. Under Heraldry for onboarding coordination, with technical input from War and Artisanry. Assigns willing mentors, coordinates classes and skill clinics, and publishes approachable resources. It separates initiation from a specialized raid trial and reviews whether support is useful. No extra native Training rank is created.

Technical Lead and Systems Architect. Also called Tech or Tools Officer, AddOn Architect, Technical Envoy, or lead of Architecture and Security. Leads the Systems and Addons Division reporting to the High Council. Coordinates AddOn maintainers, Discord engineers, website and Cloudflare operators, release review, backups and access inventories. Custody is granted individually; the title alone gives no secret, production or staff-record access. The division is active support rather than a fifth core ministry.

Welfare and Community Support Lead. Coordinates local support contacts and conflict prevention, with an independent route into Justice for policy and casework. Explains guild options and signposts appropriate support without claiming clinical expertise. A support conversation is not evidence of misconduct, and necessary records are kept outside general Council chat.

Guild management and five correspondents

Guild Master. Runs the individual affiliated guild, its roster and local officer delegation, while answering to the Founder and High Council for common obligations. Confirms local practices, capacity, succession and resource custody. Ministers communicate through the Guild Master and appointed emissaries; department position does not confer command over that guild.

Officer. Performs local leadership explicitly delegated by the Guild Master. Each sensitive game, Discord, site or financial power needs actual permission. An officer can also hold an emissary or service appointment, but this must be recorded. Holding the native Officer rank does not establish High Council membership or permission to view every other guild's recruitment.

Officer Alt. A native rank for a verified alternate character of an officer. The owner/main relationship must be recorded through the applicable verification process. It does not create another person, Council seat or vote, grant command over another guild, or bypass current permission checks. Native Officer and Officer Alt are distinct slots in Article S3.

Emissary of War for PvP. One responsible correspondent per participating guild liaises with the PvP head, proposes local participation and coordinates Captains and scouts under the Guild Master's authority. It does not commit that guild to operations without local approval.

Emissary of War for Raiding. One correspondent per guild communicates preparation needs and event plans with the raiding head. It coordinates Raid Leaders and assistants but does not replace their event command or the Guild Master's local decisions.

Emissary of Finance. One correspondent per guild supplies approved financial summaries and coordinates dues, budget requests and custody with Treasury. It supervises or liaises with the local Quartermaster under the actual delegation. Audit remains independent.

Emissary of Artisanry. One correspondent per guild brings crafting and material needs to the Association and coordinates willing suppliers. It does not requisition private resources or infer consent from membership.

Emissary of Heraldry. One correspondent per guild closes the missing link in the original chart. It verifies local news, shares approved announcements, coordinates social events and supplies a contact for community publicity. It works with local Events, Recruitment and Media representatives without making every function a separate officer rank.

Local tactical and support appointments

Raid Leader, Marshal and Raid Assistant. Raid Leader is a native rank in Article S3. Event command is a separate bounded assignment by the Guild Master, coordinated through the Raiding Emissary. Marshals and assistants are tactical appointments or aliases only within their stated remit; they are not further native ranks. The assigned leader uses the published roster and loot rules and delegates only named tasks. Actual raid-warning, invitation, bank and other capabilities depend on the client and separately configured permissions. The owner-selected authenticator safeguard is retained, including for the Raid Leader draft preset; this book does not apply it in the game.

PvP Captain. Leads a named local PvP activity, briefs objectives and coordinates communications. Reports through the PvP Emissary for shared planning, while local authority comes from the Guild Master. Captains cannot unilaterally bind other guilds or turn performance criticism into a conduct sanction.

Quartermaster Bank Manager and Bank Steward. These aliases describe the local stock and custody appointment, coordinated through the Finance Emissary. It issues approved supplies, records stock and receipts, and observes actual limits. It must not serve as the independent auditor of the same assets. Reserve stock for emergencies only under a published local rule.

Guild Recruiter and Trial Officer. May be combined in one small guild or divided when workload grows. The Recruiter handles applicants and the Trial Officer coordinates the stated introductory or activity review. Both work with central Intake and the Guild Master, explain next steps and arrange mentorship. Missing data or an applicant's silence is not fabricated proof of misconduct.

Social Community Officer and Event Representative. Provides local onboarding socials, inclusive community activities and a liaison to Heraldry. It recognizes non-raiding participation and helps communicate events. It does not grant private staff access or police members' chosen play hours merely by holding the title.

Stream and Content Representative. Supplies verified local information or permitted clips to the Media Lead. It obtains the relevant participant consent, observes event recording rules and does not publish private chat logs, cases or financial receipts.

Mentor and Class Head or Class Lead. A Mentor supports a named Initiate; a Class Head offers class or specialization advice across guilds. The offices can overlap but are separately identified. Class portfolios in this chart are Warrior, Paladin, Hunter, Rogue, Priest, Mage, Warlock, Shaman and Druid. These remain appointments in the roster of duties; this book does not claim new AddOn badges are already implemented.

Membership ranks relationships tags and review statuses

Social and Casual. A voluntary play-preference tag. A full Member retains community standing without compulsory raids or PvP. Access follows the existing verified membership and actual permissions, not an inferior Social rank.

Alt. Alt is a native rank in Article S3 and also describes the verified relationship between an alternate character, its owner and a designated main. The native slot does not create another person, vote or presumed duplicate account. It does not authorize automatic roster purges or arbitrary loss of resources. Officer Alt is a separate native slot for an officer's verified alternate. The proposed single-account dues interpretation remains subject to its separate ratification.

Trial Member Pledge and Trialist. Aliases for the introductory status normally associated with Initiate. A raid trial is an activity status and preserves an established member's native rank. Every review has criteria, support, owner and date.

Probation Penal Hold Timeout and Sentry Hold. A specifically defined case or review status, with scope and review date, imposed only through the relevant authorized process. It does not create an additional punitive native rank or itself change game or Discord permissions. The person may challenge an error and use the appeal route.

Veteran Officer Honorary and Emeritus. Recognition for past service or an advisory appointment. It creates no standing access, vote, bank rights or moderation power unless a distinct current warrant grants that specific duty.

The native Veteran rank remains a separate membership rank.

Time commitment and role review

Appointment warrants record an agreed service expectation that reflects the volunteer's availability. A reasonable starting expectation is a weekly check-in for active correspondents, a fortnightly coordination meeting and a monthly portfolio review; these are planning recommendations, not compulsory game hours. Duties can be combined or paused when workload is small. After a six-to-eight-week pilot, review response times, workload, conflicts, permissions and whether a deputy is needed. A vacant office stays vacant and its essential work is assigned explicitly rather than invented in an organisation chart.

The Guild Statute of Olympus

Proposed instrument - successor draft R6 (distinct revision of R5), prepared 9 October 2026 (America/Chicago), derived from the preserved 2 October 2026 edition. Authoring date only; adoption and effective dates remain blank.

This statute and its accompanying bylaws propose rules for the Olympus community and its affiliated guilds. They are not a claim that Asmon, the High Council, guild masters or members have already adopted them. Names shown in the supplied chart describe its source snapshot; an office becomes authoritative only through an accepted, recorded appointment and separately approved permissions. "Royal," "patent," "federal" and similar ceremonial language confer no real-world sovereignty or legal office.

Article S1 Purpose scope and controlling rules

Olympus exists for cooperative play, friendship, fair access to guild activities and responsible stewardship of shared resources. Affiliated guilds retain their own leadership while sharing the Olympus constitution, standards and voluntary common services. The initial directory provides Olympus I-X; further guilds may affiliate through an approved instrument identifying their guild master, local rules and responsible contacts. This does not assert how many guilds presently exist.

Applicable Blizzard and Discord terms and platform rules prevail. Subject to them, the Royal and Guild Charters form the constitutional instruments, followed by this Statute, the Bylaws, published ordinances and individual warrants or event rules. A lower instrument cannot amend a higher one. Platform capabilities must be checked before a rule is implemented; no proposed title proves that a game permission, bank facility or API exists.

Article S2 Admission identity and membership

An application, a verified character link, guild membership and permission to publish a directory entry are separate matters. Recruitment staff shall explain the admission process, obtain only necessary information and arrange the prescribed in-game verification. An accepted application does not itself grant a game invitation or staff powers. Officers with actual invitation authority complete the appropriate game action.

A member may designate a main character and link verified alts. A verified main/alt relationship may be represented by the native Alt or Officer Alt slot. This classification is not a lesser class of member and does not authorize automatic inactivity purges of a game roster. The inactive-record policy in Article S12a is a distinct data-retention purpose, not a membership sanction. Published attendance expectations apply to a chosen activity, not every social member. Membership transfers require agreement from the receiving guild and reconciliation of the member's home guild; they do not bypass verification.

A staff-confirmed Blizzard-mandated name change requires a new application, fresh review and fresh in-game verification before that affected character is accepted again. Ordinary renames preserving the character's established GUID link retain continuity. No one shall infer a mandated change from spelling alone. Staff assess other linked characters individually rather than automatically punishing the whole account.

Article S3 The ten native ranks

The proposed in-game ladder contains exactly these ten native ranks, in the following administrative order. Numbers in this table are human display order, not client API indices:

No.	Native rank	Meaning and limits
1	Guild Master	Runs that individual guild, safeguards succession and authorizes local operations within the constitution.
2	High Council	Appointment-associated native rank. Accepted Council seat, mandate, eligible vote, character mapping and actual permissions are separate.

No.	Native rank	Meaning and limits
3	Officer	Performs delegated local leadership duties; sensitive powers require actual verified permission.
4	Officer Alt	Verified alternate character of an officer; no second person, Council vote or automatic cross-guild authority.
5	Raid Leader	Native rank for designated raid leadership; event command remains within its separately recorded assignment.
6	Veteran	Recognizes sustained constructive service, reliability and non-raiding as well as raiding contribution.
7	Raider	Recognizes sustained organized raiding under published criteria; no general command over social members.
8	Member	Full admitted membership across raiding, crafting, social play, leveling and PvP.
9	Alt	Verified alternate character linked to its owner/main; no duplicate person or vote.
10	Initiate	Supported introductory membership with criteria, mentor and recorded review.

The display order is administrative, not a measure of a person's worth. Social/Casual is a tag available to full members. Trial Member, Trial Raider, Mentor, Class Lead, Emissary, Emeritus and Penal Hold are appointments, relationships or statuses rather than additional native ranks. High Council, Officer Alt, Raid Leader and Alt are native slots in the table. Treasurer and Co-Guild Master remain appointments. A raiding trial does not automatically demote an established member. An introductory trial normally uses Initiate; any other arrangement requires explanation and consent to its published expectations.

Promotion criteria shall be visible before assessment, allow different forms of contribution and include a correction or reconsideration route. A title alone shall not grant bank, moderation, invitation, website or Discord privileges. The owner-selected draft High Council preset includes Withdraw Gold and Modify Bank Tabs for all native High Council characters. The authenticator safeguard is retained, including Raid Leader. These are draft configuration boundaries, not live applied-permission evidence; auditor independence remains mandatory. The owner-selected draft Veteran preset includes Invite Member from original item 26 and Guild Bank Repair added by the owner's 7 October 2026 choice. That later Repair choice did not remove Invite Member; the preset does not add Withdraw Gold or Modify Bank Tabs to Veteran. The applicable repair allowance and actual client capabilities must be recorded and verified separately; this book does not invent an amount or apply a game permission. Native Veteran recognition, Veteran Officer/Honorary/Emeritus appointments and the repair preset are distinct.

Article S4 Reserved leadership and the High Council

Asmon is the chartered Founder and final constitutional authority, subject to the adoption and conflict rules in the Charters. Each affiliated guild master answers to Asmon and the High Council for compliance with shared standards while retaining command of that guild. Ministers coordinate portfolios through guild emissaries; they do not command guild masters by virtue of a portfolio title.

High Council selection is by accepted appointment, not automatic activity progression. High Council is also the second native rank in Article S3. A Council warrant identifies term, remit, reporting line and voting eligibility; assigning a native rank alone creates no Council seat or vote. Treasurer is an appointment within High Council. Co-Guild Master, Vice Guild Master and Chief of Staff remain appointments with expressly limited delegations, not extra native ranks or silent transfers of the Founder's or local Guild Masters' powers.

A reserved final decision shall state its reasons, scope and review or expiry date where relevant. Personal interests must be disclosed. Asmon shall not determine the merits of a complaint about his own conduct; an independent panel shall make the finding and recommendation. Final authority cannot waive platform rules, authorize retaliation or make an undisclosed accusation conclusive.

Article S5 Departments and shared services

The Department of War has separate PvP and Raiding heads and coordinates strategy, readiness and cross-guild operations. The Federal Treasury coordinates shared budgets, contribution accounting and resource logistics. The Association of Artisanry coordinates crafting, professions and supply. Heraldry coordinates events, public communications, identity and publicity. Each portfolio shall have a deputy or a documented continuity arrangement.

Recruitment and verification form an active intake service coordinated with Heraldry and local guild leadership. Training and the Academy coordinate mentors and class expertise with War and Artisanry. Systems and Addons provide a cross-cutting technical service accountable to the High Council. These services may begin as teams without creating new departments.

Research and strategy, intelligence/scouting, diplomacy and media may receive scoped appointments. Intelligence is limited to permitted gameplay and public information; it excludes doxxing, credential collection and platform-rule evasion. A new department requires demonstrated work, a willing lead, a budget and constitutional approval under the Charters and Bylaw B3, followed by an implementing ordinance establishing accountability. A vacant box is not an operating department.

Article S6 Local appointments and class expertise

Each affiliated guild should appoint emissaries for War (PvP), War (Raiding), Finance, Artisanry and Heraldry through its Guild Master's recorded warrant. They translate shared plans into proposals for their guild master, report local needs and coordinate with the relevant portfolio. Officers can coordinate only under that local delegation. Their correspondence role does not supersede local command.

Local appointments may include Raid Leader and assistant, PvP Captain, Quartermaster or Bank Steward, Recruiter, Trial Officer, Mentor, Social/Community Officer, Event Coordinator, Content Representative and Welfare/Community Support contact. Compatible duties may be combined when the workload permits; financial custody and independent audit must remain separate.

Class Heads/Class Leads are recognized appointments managed through appropriate tools, not native guild ranks. The original nine class portfolios are Warrior, Paladin, Hunter, Rogue, Priest, Mage, Warlock, Shaman and Druid. Their work covers mentoring, builds, rotations and accessible learning resources; advice is not compulsory conformity. Emeritus and Veteran Officer recognize past service and advice without latent administrative rights.

Article S7 Rights duties and fair access

Members may obtain the current rules, identify responsible officers, request correction of inaccurate records and raise concerns without retaliation. Activity organizers shall publish eligibility and selection criteria. Non-raiders retain full community membership; role limitations must concern the actual activity or a justified security need.

Members shall respect others, follow platform rules, report serious concerns through appropriate channels and avoid impersonation, harassment, threats, fraud, theft and deliberate sabotage. Constructive disagreement, declining an event and making a good-faith complaint are not misconduct. Welfare contacts may listen and signpost support; they shall not present themselves as medical or crisis professionals.

Article S8 Justice restrictions and sanctions

The Council of Justice provides impartial casework, mediation and appeal review. High Councillors without another portfolio form its default membership as the chart provides, but individual case designation, recusal and access remain separate. Neither Council membership nor a default Justice title grants blanket enforcement powers. Only specifically authorized staff may apply an actual platform or game restriction.

Except for a proportionate urgent safety measure, the subject receives the alleged rule breach, a useful summary of evidence, the possible consequence and at least seven calendar days to respond. Sensitive evidence may be redacted to protect others, but a decision cannot rest solely on undisclosed material. Give a reasonable opportunity to identify mistakes, provide context and nominate relevant witnesses. A hearing may be written or held privately with an agreed record.

Decision-makers disclose conflicts and recuse where personally involved, closely connected or a witness to disputed facts. Findings distinguish established facts, uncertainty and opinion. Responses may include advice, a warning, a specific temporary restriction, removal from an appointment or removal from membership, proportionate to seriousness and recurrence. "Penal Hold" records a defined restriction and review date; it is not a punitive native rank or permission grant. An allegation alone is not a finding.

Article S9 Appeal and reinstatement

A subject may appeal within fourteen calendar days of receiving the written decision for procedural unfairness, material new evidence, an unreasonable finding or disproportionate consequence. A reviewer who did not investigate or decide the original matter acknowledges the appeal within seven days and gives an expected decision date. If independent reviewers are unavailable, appoint an impartial panel rather than recycling the same decision-makers.

The appeal may uphold, vary or return the matter for reconsideration. No automatic increase in sanction follows an appeal. Restore removed privileges through separately authorized operators after reinstatement; do not assume a case record changes actual permissions.

Article S10 Treasury dues and procurement

The adopted operating policy is one gold weekly, a fourteen-day new-member exemption and ninety-day ledger retention. Receipts are recorded manually; neither the ledger nor this statute automatically collects gold or imposes sanctions. This draft proposes one obligation per verified member in the designated home guild, without duplicate obligations for linked alts. That accounting interpretation requires ratification before application.

Proposed hardship relief is confidential: the Treasurer and one independent authorized reviewer may defer or waive an obligation with a limited record, without a public list of recipients. Donating more does not purchase rank, votes, preferential case outcomes or loot entitlement.

The custodian records receipts, purpose, recipient and authorization. The auditor independently reconciles balances and exceptions and must not hold or retain withdrawal, custody or transaction-approval rights over the assets examined, including pre-existing rights. Incompatible actual access is resolved before examination; a title alone cannot enforce this separation. Procurement compares reasonable alternatives, discloses related-party interests and confirms receipt. Reversals preserve a traceable correction rather than disguising the original entry. Shared-resource permissions and any game-bank capabilities require separate verification and approval.

Article S11 Loot and event rules

Before an organized activity begins, its leader publishes the applicable loot method, eligibility, substitutions, tie-breaking, reserved items, attendance expectations and dispute route. Participants can decide whether to join with those rules known. No leader may introduce a personal reservation after the relevant drop or silently change the method during the event.

Where platform mechanics differ from an announced rule, pause and explain a compatible solution before continuing. Event rules remain subordinate to community conduct and financial safeguards. A raid leader manages the event; a disputed allocation involving that leader goes to an independent reviewer.

Article S12 Privacy records and tools

Use only the access needed for the assigned duty. Directory publication requires the relevant consent and is separate from membership. Private applications, financial details, case evidence and privacy requests shall not be copied into public news or broadly accessible council channels. Public reports use appropriate summaries without exposing unsolicited member counts, allegations or account details.

The designated privacy reader checks the staff inbox each working day. Inactive privacy conversations follow the thirty-day policy, while the contribution ledger follows its ninety-day policy. Establish ownership before account-specific disclosure or erasure. The owner's erasure choice deletes the website account, character links, applications and ordinary account data, and removes Discord roles automatically. Retain only bans, active cases and the audit log until their applicable expiry, plus backups and their minimal deletion-replay record until the backups age out (at most 366 days under the 365-day export cap). Keep the separately disclosed one-way hash of the Discord ID and character for twelve months only when the account was banned or denied at deletion. The marker is distinct from minimal deletion replay. Disputes go to a human. In execution, the bot removes the Discord roles it manages; manually assigned staff roles in Asmongold's server are handled by a human on request within that server's authority. Completion requires confirmed removal of the bot-managed Olympus Guild Member role. These execution constraints do not create an additional ordinary-record retention exception. Report failed or unverified execution without claiming completed deletion.

Article S12a Owner-selected operating retention

This table summarizes only the named owner-selected purposes below: the 7 October Balanced base terms and the later qualified retention refinements. It is not an exhaustive inventory of site data or a replacement for the separately published privacy and retention policy. That policy must list every collected purpose, retention clock, exception and erasure/recovery control before collection or use. This draft does not certify scheduler, erasure, export or restore enforcement or ratify the charter. Retention expiry is not a conduct finding, automatic game-roster purge or permission to expose private records.

Record or purpose	Selected term and conditions
Dues ledger	One gold weekly; fourteen-day new-member exemption; ninety-day ledger retention. Authorized people record actual receipts. No automatic gold collection or debtor sanction. The separate proposed per-account/home-guild treatment remains a proposal.
Privacy receipt conversations	Thirty days of inactivity; the designated reader checks each working day. Establish ownership before disclosure or erasure. Do not add an open-ended operational exception to the owner-selected erasure scope.
Core roster and departed-member records	Balanced base: roster snapshots ninety days; departed members' rows and character links twelve months after they leave. Apply the later qualified conditions below where relevant, without retaining a deleted ordinary profile under a new operational exception.
Sign-in records and audit log	Balanced base: twelve months. The audit log is an expressly selected erasure exception until its applicable expiry; sign-in records are not an extra erasure exception.
Inactive ordinary records	The selected twelve-month term covers unsuccessful applicants, ended links, unused site accounts with no active character, released reserved names, references to departed accounts and inactive relay records when their other retention conditions are met. Active members/characters and active bans/cases retain their separate rules. Use the qualified operating retention clock; this draft does not substitute an arbitrary day count or invent a new clock.
Erasure and safety marker	Erase the website account, character links, applications and ordinary records; the owner's choice also removes Discord roles automatically. Retain only bans, active cases and the audit log until their applicable expiry, plus backups and their minimal deletion-replay record until the backups age out (at most 366 days under the 365-day export cap). Keep a one-way hash of the Discord ID and character only for accounts banned or denied at deletion, for twelve months, disclosed in the published privacy policy. This marker is distinct from minimal deletion replay. Disputes go to a human. Bot-managed role removals use the authorized audited path; manually assigned Asmongold staff roles are handled by a human on request. Confirmed Guild Member removal is required before completion. Those execution constraints do not expand ordinary-record retention exceptions.
Events	Scheduled start is capped at 366 days from original creation. Repeated rescheduling does not create a new original date or keep a record indefinitely. Other qualified event-retention conditions still apply.

Record or purpose	Selected term and conditions
Residual beta dates	Preserve original beta code-request and character first-seen dates. Following the separately reviewed role/link/queue transition, residual dates age from the actual recorded beta cutoff and remain at least twelve months from that cutoff before deletion, with all other conditions met. Do not restart waiting periods by silently deleting or replacing those original dates.
Private recovery exports	Newest-only, with a maximum age of 365 days. Arrange verified replacement before expiry, then exact owner-approved cleanup receipts for the superseded copy. Verify replacement hash, restore checks and applicable counts before cleanup. An unknown-age, over-age or unverified copy is a recovery-policy hold to resolve, not blanket deletion authority or evidence that the cap is currently met.
Deletion replay	Keep minimal recovery-replay records for 366 days for the selected 365-day recovery-copy maximum age. These records are distinct from the deleted account's full profile. Verify every recoverable copy's maximum age before shortening replay; an assumed provider window is insufficient. No promise of deletion from all recovery copies or authorization to restore deleted access follows.

No private export contents, paths or credentials belong in the member charter. The separately published privacy and retention policy covers each collected purpose; operational evidence records actual enforcement, allowed exceptions and failures. This named-purpose summary does not certify completeness or successful execution.

Technical staff protect credentials, preserve recovery data and maintain attributable change records. A disabled connector remains disabled until capability, policy and deployment reviews pass. An AddOn badge, directory entry or automation record is not an independent authority to ban, invite, withdraw funds or reset ranks.

Article S13 Beta transition resignation and amendments

After actual beta closure, the attended transition removes all Olympus Discord guild roles and clears verification links and the invite queue. The later 7 October owner choice supersedes the earlier rank-and-leadership-only scope. Retain the existing website appointments of richwcampbell. as Co-Guild Master and Fernmelder as Treasurer unconditionally; clear the other website appointments. This book issues neither governance warrant, and the preserved website appointments do not preserve either person's Discord guild roles. Native game ranks, governance warrants and any further access remain separately governed. Applications, votes and private records are outside this reset and follow their own applicable policies. Reset stays OFF until the real cutoff, exact assignments and authorized operators are recorded. Authorized Guild Masters handle game ranks; authorized website and Discord operators handle their own records and roles. Do not invent a midnight or shutdown hour. Unrelated server roles and out-of-scope technical custody/recovery access are separate; retaining them must not preserve a guild role that the approved reset removes.

Resigning members may request correction or appropriate removal of their data and settle outstanding resource custody through a documented handover. Amendments apply prospectively unless necessary to correct an identified error. Existing conduct is judged under the rule applicable when it occurred; later drafting cannot manufacture earlier consent.

Bylaws of Olympus

Proposed operating procedures subordinate to the constitutional instruments and Guild Statute. The periods, quorum rules, financial threshold and appointment terms below are recommendations for adoption, not claims about existing software controls.

Bylaw B1 Appointments and the register

An appointment warrant records the office, guild or portfolio, duties, supervisor, boundaries, start date, review date, accepted appointee and required permissions. Ordinary appointments have a renewable six-month term unless the warrant specifies a shorter pilot. Technical custody may be reviewed more frequently. A vacancy remains vacant until an accepted appointment is recorded; chart labels are not warrants.

The Chief of Staff is accountable for the registers; the delegated Secretary or Registrar maintains the current office register and confidential permission register. An explicitly named acting registrar covers a vacancy without acquiring further authority. A recorded appointment, separately authorized permission change and verified readback are three distinct steps. Removal or expiry requires checking all actual access, service ownership and shared credentials without deleting needed records or disabling recovery.

Bylaw B2 Council notice and quorum

Ordinary High Council meetings receive seven calendar days' notice with an agenda; urgent meetings receive at least twenty-four hours where practicable. The Secretary records current non-vacant voting seats before the meeting. Vacancies have no vote. Attendance, recusals and declared interests are recorded.

Quorum requires more than half of all current non-vacant voting seats and at least three eligible, unconflicted members. Recusal does not reduce the seat denominator or the protective floor. A councillor with several offices has one vote. Without quorum, members may discuss and recommend but cannot record a binding Council decision. If fewer than three unconflicted members are available, an unconflicted appointing authority commissions an independent panel recommendation. The panel acquires no Council votes and cannot bypass quorum. A conflicted Founder cannot decide the merits of their own case or overwrite the independent finding as its fact-finder.

Bylaw B3 Motions votes and constitutional recommendations

Ordinary motions pass by a majority of eligible votes cast at a quorate meeting. Abstentions are recorded but not counted as affirmative or negative votes; there must still be at least three eligible participants. A tie defeats the motion; the chair has no extra casting vote. Written votes use the same membership, notice and quorum rules and a stated closing time.

A proposed constitutional amendment, guild affiliation or permanent creation of a department requires affirmative votes from at least two-thirds of all current non-vacant Council seats, rounded upward, followed by the reserved approval required by the Charters. Publish adopted wording, effective date and reasons. Membership consultation informs these decisions but is not falsely reported as a referendum or unanimous consent.

Bylaw B4 Minutes and reserved decisions

Minutes identify the proposal, authority, participants, conflicts, vote, reasons, implementation owner and review date. Circulate a draft within seven days and correct errors visibly. Publish the non-sensitive decision summary; protect case and financial evidence. A reserved decision by Asmon must identify whether it affirms, varies or returns a Council recommendation and give reasons. It is entered into the same register rather than conveyed as an unverifiable private instruction.

Bylaw B5 Emergency measures

A specifically authorized officer may impose the narrowest reversible measure needed to address an immediate credible risk. Record the reason, affected capability and time as soon as practicable, notify the subject safely and seek an unconflicted review. The temporary measure expires after twenty-four hours unless an unconflicted authorized reviewer approves a written renewal before expiry. Each renewal records reasons, precise scope and an expiry no more than twenty-four hours later; the initiating officer cannot self-renew. Good-faith criticism, complaints and appeals alone are never emergency grounds. A reviewer independent of the initiating officer examines necessity within forty-eight hours.

If immediate removal is technically unavoidable, preserve the evidence and an available appeal route. Emergency authority cannot permanently amend the constitution, appoint a council, dispose of substantial resources or erase a complaint. Extensions require an explicit next review date; a rolling hold is not a substitute for a hearing.

Bylaw B6 Intake trials and mentoring

Recruitment staff assign a contact and explain which steps are pending. The proposed introductory review occurs within fourteen days of admission. A single further fourteen-day extension requires recorded reasons and support goals; thereafter decide membership or explain why the process cannot be completed. An existing member's raid trial assesses that activity without cancelling unrelated membership.

Mentors help with rules, verification, class resources and first events. Trial criteria concern demonstrated conduct and the chosen role, not undisclosed attendance quotas. Staff record minimal outcomes and the next review date; neither silence nor a missing export counts as proof of failure.

Bylaw B7 Resource authorization and audit

A proposed substantial transaction is an unbudgeted transfer exceeding ten gold, or any transfer exceeding ten percent of the last reconciled unrestricted balance, whichever threshold is reached first. Apply this procedural threshold to combined related transfers over seven days to prevent splitting. Where no reliable balance exists, treat every non-routine transfer as substantial until reconciliation.

Substantial transactions require two recorded approvals: the responsible Treasurer or guild master and an independent, unconflicted authorized approver. Neither recipient may approve their own payment. Record authorization before the separately permitted custodian executes it. Publish routine budget ceilings; perform weekly reconciliation and monthly independent review. Suspected loss preserves logs and triggers investigation, not a public accusation. The auditor remains independent of withdrawal custody.

Bylaw B8 Complaints and case administration

A complainant may approach a designated local officer, welfare contact or Justice case officer. Acknowledge a received complaint within three working days, identify an unconflicted case owner and explain likely timing. Attempt mediation only when suitable and voluntary; serious safety concerns need not pass through mediation first. Limit access to those handling the case.

Case records state allegation, applicable rule, evidence sources, response, finding, consequence, implementation authority and appeal deadline. Separate administrative membership verification from a misconduct finding. A moderator enforces only the recorded measure within actual permissions; broader enforcement requires a new decision or justified emergency measure.

Bylaw B9 Operational cadence and continuity

Each active guild reviews intake and urgent member needs weekly. Portfolio heads and emissaries coordinate fortnightly; the Council reviews budgets, vacancies, risks and service performance monthly. These are proposed cadences, not compulsory play hours. An unavailable officeholder designates a permitted deputy or asks for cover; essential custody has a documented recovery contact.

Technical releases need an identified owner, reviewed changes, recovery arrangements and current evidence of actual deployment. Daily news may report confirmed changes, forthcoming events and approved appointment notices. It shall label proposals and corrections, exclude confidential allegations and avoid claiming that a drafted rule is live.

Bylaw B10 Adoption and implementation

First adoption uses the inaugural route in Guild Charter 1.8: confirmed Founder assent after at least seven calendar days of consultation, at least three named independent reviewers with recorded recommendations, and each participating Guild Master's assent for their own guild. This does not invent a Council quorum or appoint the reviewers. For later ratification or amendment, use the ordinary constituted Council and reserved approval rules. Confirm authority, resolve objections and approve exact versioned wording. Record the applicable inaugural recommendations or actual constituted Council recommendation and constitutional assent with actual names and dates; leave signatures blank until obtained. Publish the effective instruments and a short member guide.

Then issue appointment warrants, review permissions individually, verify the implemented access and pilot new duties in one guild for six to eight weeks before wider adoption. No appointment is filled merely because this draft suggests it. Ratification authorizes policy; operational changes still require competent operators and the relevant approvals. Review the adopted package after the pilot and annually thereafter without rewriting the historical decision record.

Book of Ordinances

These model ordinances take effect only when the charter package is ratified and their commencement is entered in the register. Each order identifies an owner, an action and a review record. Existing platform permissions, published website policies and human game controls continue to govern implementation. No order below executes a bot action, changes a guild rank or creates a person appointment.

ORD 01 Public register and commencement

The Chief of Staff is accountable for the register and delegates its maintenance to the Secretary or Registrar, with an explicitly named acting registrar for a vacancy. The register identifies the adopted charter edition, approved amendments, current office warrants, affiliated guilds and open vacancies. Heraldry publishes the member version without private evidence or account identifiers. Each entry records a reference number, issuing authority, effective date, scope, expiry where applicable and revision history. Corrections append a replacement entry rather than silently rewriting a historical decision. First commencement follows the inaugural route in Guild Charter 1.8, using recorded Founder assent, independent founding review and participating Guild Master assent without inventing Council appointments. Later decisions use the constituted High Council procedure. Drafts and unexecuted warrants remain visibly marked as such. The register must distinguish authority granted on paper from permissions actually configured in the game, Discord or website.

ORD 02 Intake and guild capacity

The Chief of Intake coordinates recruitment under Heraldry. Each Guild Master names a Guild Recruiter and supplies a current capacity statement; no chart assumption establishes a guild's existence or remaining space. A recruiter gives the applicant the current requirements, answers reasonable questions, records consent and routes the application to an appropriate guild. Staff review suitability using published criteria and relevant evidence rather than rumours, follower counts or spending. Applicants awaiting a place retain a truthful pending status. Recruiters do not promise automatic admission, secretly sell priority or invite a different player who happens to hold an old character name. Capacity and contact information are reviewed weekly and before any large recruitment announcement.

ORD 03 Character verification

The verification operator uses the preferred website and the current in-game code process. The applicant obtains their own current code, sends the instructed message from the relevant character and completes the available officer's verification procedure. Staff distinguish a website application, verified character, confirmed membership and staff authority. A saved file, screenshot, roster entry, directory listing or ceremonial title alone proves none of the other stages. The officer checks the intended account and character before any invitation. Invitation remains a normal authorized game action. Battle.net remains disabled until a separately reviewed policy and usable technical capability permit activation; this ordinance creates no alternative login, character API or permission bypass.

ORD 04 Initiation and mentorship

A Trial Member, Pledge or Trialist entering the community uses the native Initiate rank and a recorded probation status; no additional trial native rank is created. An initial review window of fourteen days is proposed, extendable once with written reasons and a new review date. The Guild Recruiter explains chat rules, security, privacy choices and the dues exemption. A willing Veteran serves as Mentor. Class specialists may assist without gaining disciplinary authority. A review considers conduct, communication and willingness to learn; a casual member need not raid to qualify. At conclusion the responsible officer confirms full Member status, records the permitted extension, or issues a reasoned membership decision with its review route. The member may ask for correction or independent review of an inaccurate record. Existing members trying a raid remain in their existing guild rank with a separate raid-trial tag.

ORD 05 Treasury receipts and weekly dues

The Federal Treasurer coordinates the established one-gold weekly dues policy, the fourteen-day new-member exemption and ninety-day ledger retention. Gold is received and recorded by an authorized person; the website does not debit a game balance. A receipt identifies the relevant week, amount, payer's permitted reference and recorder. Payments may be allocated or corrected using the ledger's supported procedures, preserving an explanation for reversal or voiding. The proposed accounting interpretation is one obligation per verified member in their designated home guild, without duplicate obligations solely for linked alts; that interpretation requires ratification before application. A disputed join date or duplicate assessment goes to finance review before any decision. Unpaid dues are not an automatic kick, ban, demotion or public shame list. Any hardship arrangement is handled confidentially and recorded only to the extent necessary.

ORD 06 Bank custody and independent audit

Each Guild Master confirms which bank or authorized custody arrangement actually exists and who can use it. The Emissary of Finance coordinates requests; the Quartermaster or Bank Steward records the issue of supplies. The Bank Auditor must not hold or retain withdrawal, custody or transaction-approval rights over the assets examined, including pre-existing rights. Resolve incompatible access before the audit; the auditor remains separate from the operator who withdraws funds or stock. An auditor receives only the least access needed to inspect records and cannot approve their own transaction. Where the client cannot enforce individual read-only access independently of a shared guild rank, do not promote the auditor into a rank with withdrawal rights: provide a reviewed log or supervised inspection instead. No account sharing is allowed. Unexplained discrepancies are preserved for independent review, with urgent access restriction performed only by an authorized person.

ORD 07 Procurement and supply

Artisanry maintains a requested-supplies list with purpose, quantity, recipient and approved budget. It checks stock and voluntary crafting offers before purchasing. A substantial transfer requires two recorded prior approvals under Bylaw B7 before a separately permitted custodian executes it. The Quartermaster then records delivery and a second person acknowledges receipt; delivery acknowledgement does not replace prior approval. A supplier discloses their own financial interest and takes no part in approving that purchase. Gifted materials remain gifts unless a written agreement says otherwise; membership does not transfer ownership of everything a player gathers. Artisanry coordinates across guilds through its emissaries, and a minister does not withdraw from a local bank merely by holding office. Scarcity allocations use a published priority, such as an approved event, rather than private favour.

ORD 08 Raids and tactical appointments

The War Head for Raiding sets shared standards and supports the guild Emissary of War for Raiding. Each event has a named Raid Leader or Marshal and, where useful, a Raid Assistant. The event announcement states time zone, sign-up deadline, requirements, capacity, loot method and cancellation contact. Tactical direction governs that event; it is not a general power to change ranks, guild permissions or bank limits. A roster decision uses the announced criteria and offers a reason when someone is declined. Members consent to the published loot procedure before the event starts. A change after participation begins requires affected participants' agreement or postponement. A failed encounter is training evidence rather than automatic misconduct.

ORD 09 PvP operations and scouting

The War Head for PvP coordinates with each guild's PvP Emissary and appointed PvP Captain. The Captain briefs participants on objectives, communications, withdrawal and conduct. Intelligence or scouting collects relevant in-game observations obtained legitimately; it does not authorize harassment, impersonation, account access, exploit use, private-message surveillance or real-world targeting. Shared research should state the game version and what has actually been tested. Diplomacy handles proposed agreements with other communities through a delegated envoy. Neither a Captain nor a scout can bind Olympus to an alliance, resource exclusivity or a server-wide campaign without the relevant written authority.

ORD 10 Heraldry and guild correspondents

Every affiliated guild designates an Emissary of Heraldry alongside its PvP, Raiding, Finance and Artisanry correspondents. The Heraldry Emissary receives announcements, verifies local event details and gives members a point of contact for publicity and social activities. An Event Coordinator works through the shared calendar. A Social or Community Officer supports inclusive participation without turning casual play into an inferior membership category. The Media Lead and local Stream or Content Representative obtain permission before using an identifiable participant's voice, portrait or private conversation. Streaming rules and consent are stated before a filmed event. Official website visual assets follow the established asset policy; the provided illustrative organisation image does not authorize replacing website assets.

ORD 11 Welfare and community support

The Welfare or Community Support Officer receives concerns privately, listens, explains available guild options and directs complaints to an impartial reviewer when necessary. They do not promise clinical counselling, secrecy that defeats an immediate safety obligation or immunity from ordinary conduct rules. Support records contain only necessary information and are kept outside public news and recruitment notes. A member may choose another contact when the officer has a conflict. A Mentor can help with onboarding and practical play but must not demand sensitive personal details. The Council of Justice handles any conduct case through its own process; a support conversation is not itself a finding of wrongdoing.

ORD 12 Justice referrals and temporary holds

A complaint identifies the conduct, relevant rule, available evidence and requested response. The Council of Justice appoints an impartial case owner, gives the affected person an understandable notice and an opportunity to answer, and records conflicts of interest. A Probation, Penal Hold, Timeout or Sentry Hold is a case status, not a native rank or a finding of guilt. Authorized staff may apply a necessary temporary platform restriction within its precise scope. An emergency reversible restriction expires after twenty-four hours unless an unconflicted authorized reviewer approves a written renewal before expiry; the initiating officer cannot self-renew. Each renewal records necessity, scope and an expiry no more than twenty-four hours later. Independent review is due within forty-eight hours. Good-faith criticism, complaints and appeals alone are not emergency grounds. Staff review aggregate Discord permissions, including Council roles, rather than assuming that one deny controls every other role. Case details are not published in the daily news.

ORD 13 Name changes and identity correction

An ordinary rename that preserves a known character GUID retains its identity link. A confirmed Blizzard-mandated rename is reported by authorized staff for the affected character, with the minimum necessary reason and record. That character must submit a new application, receive staff review and complete fresh in-game verification before renewed acceptance. Staff do not infer a Blizzard mandate merely because a name changed, and an unaffected current member character can retain account membership. A mistaken hold is reviewed and cancelled explicitly; deleting evidence or renaming a directory entry is not a substitute. A request for correction uses the current staff workflow, and publication of an old or prohibited name is avoided when unnecessary.

ORD 14 Systems and access management

The Systems and Addons Division reports to the High Council through an appointed Technical Lead or Architect. It maintains tools, documented recovery steps, a permissions inventory and a release record. Website, bot, game and directory authority are separate. An office warrant triggers a request for the needed permissions, not an automatic privileged grant. No password or bot token is placed in a charter, public log, news issue, Discord message or shared repository. Reviews use exact source and deployment references. A release preserves configuration, queues and records, and the operating watcher remains a single intended runner. A running process or successful roster delivery is not evidence that every verification, chat or role workflow passed.

ORD 15 Data requests and publication consent

The designated privacy reader checks the private request inbox each working day. Receipt conversations follow the thirty-day inactivity policy. Establish identity before account-specific disclosure or erasure. Follow Article S12's owner-selected erasure policy for ordinary account data and automatic Discord-role removal. Retain only bans, active cases and the audit log until their applicable expiry, plus backups and their minimal deletion-replay record until the backups age out (at most 366 days under the 365-day export cap); retain the separately disclosed twelve-month one-way marker solely for accounts banned or denied at deletion. Send disputes to a human. The bot removes only the Discord roles it manages through the authorized audited path; manually assigned Asmongold staff roles are handled by a human on request. Confirm bot-managed Olympus Guild Member removal before completion. These execution constraints do not expand record-retention exceptions. Directory listings, crafting offers and public profiles require their own consent; an application does not create it. Publish governance contacts using only an agreed display name and appropriate contact route, avoiding credentials and unnecessary account identifiers. New records need a purpose, access owner and published retention schedule before collection; this draft changes no live policy or recovery copy.

Article S12a summarizes the named selected purposes, not an exhaustive site data schedule. Consult the separately published privacy and retention policy for each collected purpose. Distinguish ninety-day roster snapshots, twelve-month departed rows/links and sign-in/audit terms, qualified inactive records, thirty-day receipt conversations, ninety-day ledger, eventual beta-cutoff aging, private export copies, minimal deletion replay and the separate banned-or-denied safety marker. Check ownership and applicable purpose conditions. For erasure, retain only the expressly selected safety records until expiry; disputes go to a human. Validate a replacement and applicable restore/count checks before separately approved superseded-export cleanup, record the exact receipt and preserve required minimal replay. Unknown recovery-copy age or unverified enforcement is a reported hold; this ordinance authorizes no private export deletion or production restore.

ORD 16 Daily bulletin

Heraldry prepares one issue for each operating day on which there is verified news. The editor dates the issue in America/Chicago and includes the time zone on events. A responsible officer approves operational claims; the named event owner verifies their event. Headlines distinguish adopted rules, drafts, vacancies, completed releases and untested workflows. Treasury news uses suitable aggregate information without exposing individual debtors; Justice news gives neutral process notices without case evidence. If nothing is confirmed, publish a brief no-new-announcements issue or omit the issue under the adopted publication policy. A correction names the affected issue and replaces the inaccurate claim without silently altering the archive. These documents supply a publication workflow, not an automatic scheduler or permission to post externally.

ORD 17 Weekly reporting and the operating rhythm

Guild Masters provide a weekly summary of capacity, current appointments, upcoming events and unresolved operational needs. Department heads publish an action list naming an owner and due date for each accepted task. Treasury reconciles receipts, Artisanry checks supply requests, War reviews event readiness, and Heraldry confirms the calendar and notices. Systems reviews failed deliveries and recovery readiness without publishing secrets. Justice reports only appropriately redacted case workload and procedural delays. Vacancies are stated honestly; a deputy covers a recorded absence within the warrant's limits. High Council minutes record decisions and dissent, while discussion transcripts remain private where the published access rules require it.

ORD 18 Beta closure and release appointments

Beta assignments are provisional. After actual beta closure, the administrator records the real cutoff and reviewed assignment list for an attended, once-only transition that remains OFF until authorized. Remove all Olympus Discord guild roles, clear verification links and the invite queue, and clear other website appointments while retaining the existing website appointments of richwcampbell. as Co-Guild Master and Fernmelder as Treasurer unconditionally. This book issues neither governance warrant, and neither preserved website appointment retains a Discord guild role. Native game ranks, governance warrants and any further access remain separately governed. Applications, votes and private records are outside this reset and follow their own applicable policies. The I-X directory remains empty unless valid appointments are separately recorded. Authorized Guild Masters reconsider game ranks, and authorized website/Discord operators execute their own approved changes. Unrelated Asmongold roles and out-of-scope technical custody/recovery access are separate; no required guild-role removal is waived by a recovery label. Original code-request and first-seen dates follow Article S12a and ORD 19 rather than being silently replaced. No midnight, draft date or assumed shutdown hour runs the reset; replacement warrants and access require separate review.

ORD 19 Launch identity safeguards

Before the first live-release roster is used, Systems and Intake require the reviewed activation of the release identity cutoff, clearing beta-era verification links and the invite queue within the attended owner-selected reset. The current LINKS_NOT_BEFORE setting and queue treatment need a reviewed source and deployment path; operators must not bypass guards or blindly empty a private queue. Beta character names are not durable evidence of the live character's owner. Preserve necessary audit and recovery material only under the selected retention purposes, require current verification proof and explain reapplication. This directs future review and does not claim launch controls are activated.

The selected residual-date policy preserves original beta code-request and character first-seen dates and ages them from the eventual actual beta cutoff after the separately reviewed transition. Retain them for at least twelve months from that cutoff, with their other retention conditions met, rather than deleting them in the attended reset and restarting waiting periods. No cutoff is fabricated from the draft date or a calendar midnight. Reset remains OFF until actual closure, the reviewed scope and affected assignments are recorded and the competent operators attend it.

ORD 20 Pilot and expansion

Recruitment, Events, Systems, the Heraldry Emissary and deputy coverage receive the first implementation priority. Pilot the appointments in one willing guild for six to eight weeks after ratification, using a published start date and review date. Check workload, access, response times, volunteer availability and overlap before expanding. Research, Intelligence, Diplomacy and Media are initially appointments within existing leadership, not additional departments. A fifth department requires an established workload, a willing accountable lead and an adopted amendment. I-X is the present directory scope; additional guilds require affiliation warrants and an approved directory extension. No claim that forty guilds currently exist follows from an expansion proposal.
